

concurrent and real time pdf

Concurrent computing is a form of computing in which several computations are executed during overlapping time periodsâ€”concurrentlyâ€”instead of sequentially (one completing before the next starts). This is a property of a systemâ€”this may be an individual program, a computer, or a networkâ€”and there is a separate execution point or "thread of control" for each computation ("process").

In computer science, real-time computing (RTC), or reactive computing describes hardware and software systems subject to a "real-time constraint", for example from event to system response. Real-time programs must guarantee response within specified time constraints, often referred to as "deadlines". The correctness of these types of systems depends on their temporal aspects as well as their ...

1 Faster R-CNN: Towards Real-Time Object Detection with Region Proposal Networks Shaoqing Ren, Kaiming He, Ross Girshick, and Jian Sun Abstractâ€”State-of-the-art object detection networks depend on region proposal algorithms to hypothesize object locations. Advances like SPPnet [1] and Fast R-CNN [2] have reduced the running time of these detection networks, exposing region

In your experience, how often does your audio application have to compete for CPU time with other regular system processes? You can attempt to do as much "scheduling" within your own thread (or perhaps a thread pool within the same address space), but sometimes the system (as a whole) has other things to do than just schedule your own application.

The concurrent collections and spinning primitives help you with lower-level parallel programming activities. These are important because PFX has been designed to work not only with today's hardware, but also with future generations of processors with far more cores.
