The Semantic Web is an extension of the World Wide Web through standards by the World Wide Web Consortium (W3C). The standards promote common data formats and exchange protocols on the Web, most fundamentally the Resource Description Framework (RDF). According to the W3C, "The Semantic Web provides a common framework that allows data to be shared and reused across application, enterprise, and ...

1.4.1 Agents and Services. A Web service is an abstract notion that must be implemented by a concrete agent. (See Figure 1-1) The agent is the concrete piece of software or hardware that sends and receives messages, while the service is the resource characterized by the abstract set of functionality that is provided.

In computing, linked data (often capitalized as Linked Data) is a method of publishing structured data so that it can be interlinked and become more useful through semantic queries. It builds upon standard Web technologies such as HTTP, RDF and URIs, but rather than using them to serve web pages only for human readers, it extends them to share information in a way that can be read ...

Solution architects and developers have many architectural options at their disposal. In this article, we discuss semantic model architectures and describe the semantic model approach and how it fits in context of other architectural patterns. We highlight the value of semantic models as a core component in solution design and show how IBM Integrated Information Core enables creation of model ...

Abstract. The Resource Description Framework RDF allows users to describe both Web documents and concepts from the real worldâ€”people, organisations, topics, thingsâ€”in a computer-processable way. Publishing such descriptions on the Web creates the Semantic Web.URIs (Uniform Resource Identifiers) are very important, providing both the core of the framework itself and the link between RDF and ...
